Revealing the hidden history of British lesbian women.

1928: The Well of Loneliness

The Lesbian Archive contains original copies of the 1928 publication of The Well of Loneliness, written by Radclyffe Hall.

It was found to be obscene in court, although there were no explicit sexual references made in it, and hence all copies were recalled and burned.

“Worse than throwing acid in a young person’s eyes.”

The Well of Loneliness, Radclyffe Hall, 1928
